

Why Italy Must Say NO to War in Libya

It is true: there is no evidence, there are no documents: but logic is telling us that Islam is launching its final assault on us. Since many years logic is telling us so, since the times when we could still talk about forecasts instead of real facts. At that same time politicians and leaders, – even religious ones – were denying this evidence: “We are having a very constructive dialogue with all mediterranean countries” they kept saying to anybody who dared to be doubtful. “There will be no conflict, because the prevailing ideas are integration, tolerance and respect” they also said. Geopolitics is that wretched theory according to which all the peoples living along the coasts of the Mediterranean sea are similar. This is an invention that we owe to Karl Haushofer, a friend of Hitler; and this led to tremendous mistakes because this approach is looking at the territories as if there were no men inhabiting them. For a long time Europe cherished the project to involve north Africa (the countries on the mediterranean coast) in its economical and political area. But the whole project failed because it did not take into account the Peoples. The West keeps undervaluing the cultural strength of Islam, the faith that is supporting and driving them, and the historical and cultural abyss that is separating them from us.

The present political earthquake is not accidental: it was prepared and ignited according to a precise schedule and plan, whose final goal is the defeat and oppression of Europe. This is why the ‘rebellion’ developed so quickly from Egypt to Libya. And to the present day we do not know who gave it a start, which forces are fighting in this battle, what is the purpose of the ‘rebels’. This turmoil is so close to our borders – especially to the ones of Italy – and has just one meaning: they want to force Europe and Italy to take a position on the matter. And – with or without a war – this position will justify the arrival of thousands of Africans, of Muslims, in our territory. This is the final goal; all the rest – freedom, human rights, democracy, oil – is just the usual “westernization” of the problem. Because the West – first of all the United States – still think they can use these frail banners as an excuse to set their foot in someone else's’ home.

For Italy and Europe this is the last chance to affirm their will to exist. We must completely change our approach: until now we showed superior benevolence, comprehension, tolerance and solidarity. But now the first and only duty of our governors is to protect their people and their goods. This means to protect the integrity of the territory, the culture, the identity, all what a people owns. This is not a "clash of civilizations", as it was often said. With immigration they are using a cunning strategy: no need to fight, they will just win over us taking advantage of the values we are so proud. They will defeat us without war, just with their presence. This is why Italy must not consent to acts of war – no matter who will decide them – because the result would be a series of destructive war actions in Italy, together with disorders and massacres in the african countries for a long time to come. No economical interest can justify such a scenario. And an act of war would not save us from immigration, which is the real and final goal of all what is happening right now.

The Italian government must immediately give a clear signal that nobody will be allowed to cross our national borders; no boat must be allowed to enter the national sea waters. The Schengen treaty must be suspended without being afraid of negative reactions from Europe. Italy is in a strong position: what would be Europe without Italy? Where would be Europe's borders? How credible would be the very idea of an United Europe if Italy is not part of it? Italy with the ancient Romans created the history and the essence of Europe; the Romans founded London, Paris, York, Strasbourg. They created the languages and the laws, they propagated religion and the Pope lives in Italy. We have the right and the duty to save this all.
