

Running towards the Abyss

The Italian society and its current Government really look like a truck that is losing pieces while running faster and faster towards a precipice. Nobody is using the brake, though: the most terrifying aspect of the situation is the absolute tranquility of the pilot and those around him. They all look ahead, without seeing even the smallest obstacle. According to all the protagonists of politics, after the condemnation of Berlusconi nothing will change in the Letta government. And indeed in the commanding post high above someone is thinking about "armoring the government" – as journalists say: the government that will save Italy from the inevitable disaster that would follow its fall. All this has been said again last night, after the condemnation of Berlusconi.

Well, the faults of Berlusconi that Italians can complain about surely are not the same ones sentenced by the courts. He made serious political mistakes, and we do not know if they are due to personal strategy – which in any case was unsuccessful – or are due to an absolute willingness to keep Italy within Europe – another failed strategy. The very serious economic and social situation of Italy is due to the fact that we are trapped into the "horrid idea of the Euro" (as Nobel Prize Amartya Sen says). The public debt continues to grow because we are forced to pay interests for the money that we use to the Rothschilds, to the Rockefellers, to Mr. Draghi, and to the sovereigns of England, Spain, Belgium and Holland, who own the central banks and the ECB in particular. If we do not take back our monetary sovereignty and do not abandon the European rules on market freedom, taxes cannot be reduced, nor unemployment.

Berlusconi's greatest fault is that of bowing and obey when the President of the Italian Republic called mr. Mario Monti at the government. That was the turning point: when he accepted to betray the rules of democracy, resigning without the ratification of Parliament; when he countersigned the appointment of Monti as "senator for life" (there were not the conditions required by the Constitution); and when he forced his party to vote the decrees of Mr. Monti. He has missed all the duties of a political leader of a major party, and he forced his party to do exactly the opposite of what its voters wanted.

Now we must say the truth about these voters, since great part of Berlusconi's success was always ascribed to his personal charisma. The truth is that all those who refused to vote for the Left had no other choice but to vote for Berlusconi. It is not a question of "keeping away communism", as Berlusconi kept repeating in all these years. The Christian Democrats and then Berlusconi were almost always governing Italy during all these last years; but in the meantime, little by little, Italy became a social-communist society in full. Bourgeoisie was annihilated, all social structures – School, Health, Pensions – were nationalized and submitted to egalitarianism. A few referendums on divorce and abortion were enough, together with the last brush stroke: the Monti government decrees that control all cash and bank account movements: now we are into communism in full.

There is no need for executions – as at the time of Stalin – because there are no rebels, everybody agrees, starting from the President of the Republic down to the political Right and Left. The only sign of denial are suicides, but what better solution for Power? Possible opponents are eliminating themselves! Judiciary do not see any sign of guilt. In the last days, the Judiciary just archived the case of the suicide of the director of the Monte dei Paschi di Siena, David Rossi: it was a voluntary act. In practice, therefore, people are now discussing about useless topics: the expiration date of a tax, the VAT increase. Real problems do not exist anymore, because the Letta Government finally achieved the total submission and servitude to Europe and its globalist egalitarianism; democracy still pretends to exist under the name of "broad agreement".

In his plans for the future of his party, Berlusconi does not say a word about all this. "Going back to the spirit of 1994"?? Does he understand that in 1994 everything was different, and the Euro did not even exist? As it is, now Italy is doomed. This is the final goal of the European Union: to cancel the national states. Now the parliamentarians of the Pdl should do their duty: they must not obey Berlusconi if they cannot convince him that it is not possible to betray the voters. Pdl deputies should resign and should give a signal of courage, dignity and respect for the Italians.
